The Rise of Online Shopping

Online shopping has revolutionized the way people purchase goods. Instead of visiting physical stores, consumers can now buy products from the comfort of their homes. E-commerce websites offer a wide variety of items, from clothing and electronics to groceries and furniture. Many people prefer online shopping because it saves time and allows them to compare prices easily.

One major advantage of online shopping is the availability of discounts and special offers. Many websites provide exclusive deals that are not available in traditional stores. Additionally, customers can read product reviews before making a purchase, helping them make better decisions. Free shipping and flexible return policies also attract more buyers to online platforms.

However, online shopping has its drawbacks. One major issue is the inability to see or try products before buying. Customers sometimes receive items that look different from the pictures shown online. Another concern is security, as hackers may attempt to steal personal information and payment details. These risks make some people hesitant to shop online.

Despite these disadvantages, online shopping continues to grow rapidly. Companies are improving their security measures and offering better customer service to increase trust. As technology advances, online shopping is expected to become even more convenient and secure in the future.

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

One of the most urgent environmental problems in the world today is the shortage of clean water. Having clean drinking water is a basic human right. However, acid rain, industrial pollution and garbage have made many sources of water undrinkable. Lakes, reservoirs and even entire seas have become vast pools of poison. Lake Baikal in Russia is one of the largest lakes in the world. It contains a rich variety of animals and plants, including 1,300 rare species that do not exist anywhere else in the world. Yet, they are being destroyed by the massive volumes of industrial effluent which pour into the lake every day. Even though laws have been made, the government does not have the power to enforce them. Most industries simply ignore the regulations. The Mediterranean Sea occupies 1% of the world's water surface, but it is the dumping ground for 50% of all marine pollution. Almost 16 countries regularly throw industrial wastes a few miles off shore.

Water is free to everyone. A few years ago, people thought that the supply of clean water in the world was limitless. Today, many water supplies have been ruined by pollution and sewage. Clean water is now scarce, and we are at last beginning to respect this precious source. We should do something now.

People in cities around the world walk 10% more quickly than they did twenty years ago. Singapore, a world business centre, is top of the list for fast walkers.

In the USA there is a book called One-Minute Bedtime Stories for children. These are shorter versions of traditional stories, especially written for busy parents who need to save time.

People aren't as patient as they were in the past. If the lift takes more than 15 seconds to arrive, people get very impatient because they think they're wasting time. It's exactly the same when an internet page does not open immediately.

Written communication on the internet is getting shorter and shorter and using more and more abbreviations, like BFN (bye for now) or NP (no problem). Twitter only allows you to use 140 characters, and now a new social networking site has a limit of just ten words.

Even in our free time we do things in a hurry. Twenty years ago when people went to art galleries they spent ten seconds looking at each picture. Today they spend much less time - just three seconds!

Our cars are faster, but the traffic is worse, so we drive more slowly. The average speed of cars in New York City is 15 km/h. We spend more time than ever sitting in our cars, feeling stressed because we aren't going to arrive on time.

36. What is the main idea of the reading passage?

- A. How we walk now compared to the past
- B. How technology has changed our lives for the better
- C. How our current society differs from the past
- D. How we used to lead better lives in past times

37. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the text?
- People in Singapore walk faster than in other cities.
 - The speed at which people view art in galleries has decreased.
 - The average speed of cars in New York City has increased.
 - Written communication on the internet has become more abbreviated.
38. The word "they" in paragraph 3 refers to?
- lift
 - internet pages
 - seconds to arrive
 - people
39. The word "abbreviations" in paragraph 3 is CLOSEST in meaning to _____.
- shortened words
 - informal words
 - technical words
 - advanced words
40. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage?
- Our cars are faster, but our driving speed has decreased.
 - People like to take their time when they do things nowadays.
 - People had more patience in the past than they do now.
 - We become stressed when we worry about being on time.

Obesity increases a person's risk of cancer, heart disease and other diseases. About 2.6 billion people globally - 38% of the world population - are already overweight or obese. But on current trends that is expected to rise to more than 4 billion people (51%) in 12 years' time, according to research by the World Obesity Federation.

Obesity among children and young people is likely to increase faster than that among adults. By 2035 it is expected to be at least double the rate seen in 2020 - it will rise by 100% among boys under 18, but go up even more sharply, by 125%, among girls the same age.

Switzerland, Norway, Finland, Iceland and Sweden are among the best prepared countries to deal with obesity while Niger, Nigeria, Somalia and Central African Republic are examples of the world's poorest countries that are the least prepared. Professor Louise Baur, the federation's president, says that the sharpest increases in obesity will be seen in low- and middle-income countries where lack of preparedness and resources will create a perfect storm that will negatively impact obese people the most.

The rising obesity globally is caused by factors such as climate change. Covid restrictions and chemical pollutants, as well as the promotion of unhealthy foods. It is suggested that governments should restrict the marketing of foods that are high in fat, salt or sugar, and provide healthy food in schools.

There are several methods to generate electricity such as using fossil fuels and nuclear fission. However, burning fossil fuels pollutes the atmosphere and rivers. Besides, they are expensive and limited sources of energy. Similarly, using nuclear fission also harms the environment because it forms dangerous radioactive waste. In contrast, making electricity from sunlight is cleaner and safer.

Sunlight offers many ways to get energy. For instance, a window can allow warm sunlight into your room, or solar water-heating systems can use it to warm water for houses, swimming pools and schools. In addition, sunlight also warms the Earth and causes wind which can be exploited to generate electricity. Lastly, Photovoltaic, or PV systems use a type of material that converts sunlight into electricity. PV systems can power air conditioners or satellites like the International Space Station. They are also used to run calculators, recharge cell phones, or even power lightweight cars.

Sunlight creates a large amount of environmentally friendly heat and electricity. Therefore, it can be an alternative source of energy today and in the future.

The Importance of Sleep

Sleep is essential for maintaining good health and well-being. It helps the body recover from daily activities and supports brain function. Scientists recommend that adults should sleep between seven and nine hours per night. However, many people do not get enough sleep due to busy schedules and stress. As a result, they may experience fatigue, difficulty concentrating, and even serious health issues.

One of the most important benefits of sleep is its role in memory and learning. During sleep, the brain processes and stores information gathered throughout the day. Studies show that people who get enough sleep perform better on tests and have improved problem-solving skills. In contrast, those who lack sleep often struggle with remembering things and making decisions.

Additionally, sleep has a significant impact on physical health. It helps regulate hormones, boost the immune system, and reduce the risk of diseases such as heart disease and diabetes. People who consistently get enough sleep tend to have more energy and a stronger immune system. Therefore, developing good sleeping habits is crucial for a healthy lifestyle.

I have been on an unforgettable field trip to Ba Vi with my class. The trip was designed to show students the authentic life of Vietnamese villages and to support the local community. During this trip, we paid a visit to some local families who introduced us to the daily life and traditional activities of the local villages.

The first stop was at the Ri village, where we met Mr. Duoc, who owns the tea plantation. We had a walk around his farm and took part in the tea harvesting. Later he taught us how to roll and dry the tea leaves.

Then we visited another village and the other host Mrs. Chin, who taught US how to cook traditional meals. After cooking we could try the meals we made for lunch at the tropical garden. After a short break, we could have a cycling trip along the lake, rice fields, and banana plantations. On the way, we could enjoy the surrounding scenery and talk to local people. We also saw what people did for a living and how the local products were made.

After the cycling trip, we moved to the third host Mrs. Chinh, who is a representative of Muong people. She took us on a boat trip along the Da river, which was the last part of the field trip.

The Earth – Our Precious Planet

The Earth is a unique planet in the solar system because it is the only one known to support life. It has the right balance of air, water, and land that allows humans, animals, and plants to survive. The atmosphere not only provides oxygen but also protects living things from harmful radiation from the sun.

Unfortunately, human activities are harming the Earth. Pollution from factories and vehicles releases harmful gases into the air, leading to global warming. Deforestation destroys the habitats of many animals and reduces the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere. Additionally, plastic waste is polluting oceans and rivers, putting marine life at risk.

There are many ways people can help protect the Earth. Recycling waste, using renewable energy sources, and reducing the use of plastic are some of the most effective solutions. Planting more trees and using eco-friendly products can also help reduce environmental damage.

Governments and individuals need to work together to save the planet. Laws should be made to limit pollution, and people should be educated about the importance of protecting nature. If everyone takes action now, the Earth will remain a beautiful and healthy place for future generations.

36. What is the main idea of the passage?
 A. The structure of the Earth
 B. The importance of the atmosphere
 C. The problems facing the Earth and how to protect it
 D. The history of the Earth

 B. Deforestation helps increase oxygen levels in the atmosphere.
 C. Pollution from vehicles contributes to global warming.
 D. Recycling waste is a good way to protect the environment.
39. According to paragraph 3, what can people do to help the Earth?
 A. Use more plastic and waste energy
 B. Recycle waste and use renewable energy
 C. Cut down more trees and use fossil fuels
 D. Pollute the environment more
40. According to paragraph 4, who should take action to protect the Earth?
 A. Only governments
 B. Only scientists
 C. Both governments and individuals
 D. Only students

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Planets are celestial bodies that orbit stars. In our solar system, there are eight planets revolving around the Sun. These planets are divided into two groups: terrestrial planets and gas giants. The terrestrial planets, including Mercury, Venus, Earth, and Mars, have solid, rocky surfaces. On the other hand, the gas giants, which are Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune, are composed mainly of hydrogen and helium. Each planet has unique characteristics that make it different from the others.

Earth is the only planet known to support life. It has the right atmosphere, liquid water, and a suitable temperature for living organisms. Mars, often called the "Red Planet," has been the focus of many space missions because scientists believe it may have had water in the past. Jupiter, the largest planet in our solar system, has a massive storm known as the Great Red Spot. Saturn is famous for its spectacular ring system, while Neptune is known for its deep blue color and strong winds.

Scientists continue to explore the universe in search of new planets beyond our solar system. These planets, called exoplanets, orbit other stars and may have conditions suitable for life. Advanced telescopes and space missions help astronomers study these distant worlds, bringing us closer to answering the question of whether life exists elsewhere in the universe.

36. What is the main idea of the passage?

 B. Mars has never had water on its surface.
 C. Jupiter is the largest planet in the solar system.
 D. Exoplanets orbit stars outside our solar system.
39. What makes Earth different from other planets?
 A. It has the largest size in the solar system.
 B. It is the closest planet to the Sun.
 C. It is known to support life.
 D. It has the strongest winds.
40. Why do scientists study exoplanets?
 A. To find new sources of energy

Obesity increases a person's risk of cancer, heart disease and other diseases. About 2.6 billion people globally - 38% of the world population - are already overweight or obese. But on current trends that is expected to rise to more than 4 billion people (51%) in 12 years' time, according to research by the World Obesity Federation.

Obesity among children and young people is likely to increase faster than that among adults. By 2035 it is expected to be at least double the rate seen in 2020 - it will rise by 100% among boys under 18, but go up even more sharply, by 125%, among girls the same age.

Switzerland, Norway, Finland, Iceland and Sweden are among the best prepared countries to deal with obesity while Niger, Nigeria, Somalia and Central African Republic are examples of the world's poorest countries that are the least prepared. Professor Louise Baur, the federation's president, says that the sharpest increases in obesity will be seen in low- and middle-income countries where lack of preparedness and resources will create a perfect storm that will negatively impact obese people the most.

The rising obesity globally is caused by factors such as climate change. Covid restrictions and chemical pollutants, as well as the promotion of unhealthy foods. VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

There are several methods to generate electricity such as using fossil fuels and nuclear fission. However, burning fossil fuels pollutes the atmosphere and rivers. Besides, they are expensive and limited sources of energy. Similarly, using nuclear fission also harms the environment because it forms dangerous radioactive waste. In contrast, making electricity from sunlight is cleaner and safer.

Sunlight offers many ways to get energy. For instance, a window can allow warm sunlight into your room, or solar water-heating systems can use it to warm water for houses, swimming pools and schools. In addition, sunlight also warms the Earth and causes wind which can be exploited to generate electricity. Lastly, Photovoltaic, or PV systems use a type of material that converts sunlight into electricity. PV systems can power air conditioners or satellites like the International Space Station. They are also used to run calculators, recharge cell phones, or even power lightweight cars.

Sunlight creates a large amount of environmentally friendly heat and electricity. Therefore, it can be an alternative source of energy today and in the future.

The Importance of Sleep

Sleep is essential for maintaining good health and well-being. It helps the body recover from daily activities and supports brain function. Scientists recommend that adults should sleep between seven and nine hours per night. However, many people do not get enough sleep due to busy schedules and stress. As a result, they may experience fatigue, difficulty concentrating, and even serious health issues.

One of the most important benefits of sleep is its role in memory and learning. During sleep, the brain processes and stores information gathered throughout the day. Studies show that people who get enough sleep perform better on tests and have improved problem-solving skills. In contrast, those who lack sleep often struggle with remembering things and making decisions.

Additionally, sleep has a significant impact on physical health. It helps regulate hormones, boost the immune system, and reduce the risk of diseases such as heart disease and diabetes. People who consistently get enough sleep tend to have more energy and a stronger immune system. Therefore, developing good sleeping habits is crucial for a healthy lifestyle.

I have been on an unforgettable field trip to Ba Vi with my class. The trip was designed to show students the authentic life of Vietnamese villages and to support the local community. During this trip, we paid a visit to some local families who introduced us to the daily life and traditional activities of the local villages.

The first stop was at the Ri village, where we met Mr. Duoc, who owns the tea plantation. We had a walk around his farm and took part in the tea harvesting. Later he taught us how to roll and dry the tea leaves.

Then we visited another village and the other host Mrs. Chin, who taught US how to cook traditional meals. After cooking we could try the meals we made for lunch at the tropical garden. After a short break, we could have a cycling trip along the lake, rice fields, and banana plantations. On the way, we could enjoy the surrounding scenery and talk to local people. We also saw what people did for a living and how the local products were made.

After the cycling trip, we moved to the third host Mrs. Chinh, who is a representative of Muong people. She took us on a boat trip along the Da river, which was the last part of the field trip.

The Earth – Our Precious Planet

The Earth is a unique planet in the solar system because it is the only one known to support life. It has the right balance of air, water, and land that allows humans, animals, and plants to survive. The atmosphere not only provides oxygen but also protects living things from harmful radiation from the sun.

Unfortunately, human activities are harming the Earth. Pollution from factories and vehicles releases harmful gases into the air, leading to global warming. Deforestation destroys the habitats of many animals and reduces the amount of oxygen in the atmosphere. Additionally, plastic waste is polluting oceans and rivers, putting marine life at risk.

There are many ways people can help protect the Earth. Recycling waste, using renewable energy sources, and reducing the use of plastic are some of the most effective solutions. Planting more trees and using eco-friendly products can also help reduce environmental damage.

Governments and individuals need to work together to save the planet. Laws should be made to limit pollution, and people should be educated about the importance of protecting nature. If everyone takes action now, the Earth will remain a beautiful and healthy place for future generations.

36. What is the main idea of the passage?

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

Planets are celestial bodies that orbit stars. In our solar system, there are eight planets revolving around the Sun. These planets are divided into two groups: terrestrial planets and gas giants. The terrestrial planets, including Mercury, Venus, Earth, and Mars, have solid, rocky surfaces. On the other hand, the gas giants, which are Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus, and Neptune, are composed mainly of hydrogen and helium. Each planet has unique characteristics that make it different from the others.

Earth is the only planet known to support life. It has the right atmosphere, liquid water, and a suitable temperature for living organisms. Mars, often called the "Red Planet," has been the focus of many space missions because scientists believe it may have had water in the past. Jupiter, the largest planet in our solar system, has a massive storm known as the Great Red Spot. Saturn is famous for its spectacular ring system, while Neptune is known for its deep blue color and strong winds.

Scientists continue to explore the universe in search of new planets beyond our solar system. These planets, called exoplanets, orbit other stars and may have conditions suitable for life. Advanced telescopes and space missions help astronomers study these distant worlds, bringing us closer to answering the question of whether life exists elsewhere in the universe.

36. What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. The history of the solar system
- B. The characteristics of planets in the solar system
- C. The importance of space missions
- D. The role of stars in the universe

- A. Earth is the only planet known to support life.
- B. Mars has never had water on its surface.
- C. Jupiter is the largest planet in the solar system.
- D. Exoplanets orbit stars outside our solar system.

39. What makes Earth different from other planets?

- A. It has the largest size in the solar system.
 B. It is the closest planet to the Sun.
C. It is known to support life.
 D. It has the strongest winds.
40. Why do scientists study exoplanets?
 A. To find new sources of energy
B. To discover planets that may support life
 C. To prove that Neptune is the farthest planet
 D. To understand how Saturn's rings were formed
