Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Many pre-teens and teenagers enjoy spending their free time doing things like shopping, going to parties, being with friends, gaming and using social media, texting, watching movies, reading and going to the beach or park. Pre-teens and teenagers might also spend their free time doing structured extracurricular activities like arts and sports, community activities or volunteering, or casual work.

Spending some free time together is a great way to stay connected with your child. Doing something one-on-one with parents can be a treat for your child. You could go to a movie or concert, cook a meal together, go for a walk, look through family photos, or work together on a project like redecorating your child's room. It just depends on what interests you and your child have in common.

These activities might not happen spontaneously. You might need to discuss ideas with your child and plan to spend some time together. If spending free time with you is a new thing, your child might need some encouragement before they're keen. If this is an issue, you could plan short activities you know your child is likely to enjoy to start with. Besides, you could ask your child whether they'd like to invite a friend along. If you spend time together often enough, your child will probably start to feel more enthusiastic, so keep trying. You might need to try a range of activities before you find one you both like.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Teenage years are a time when your young people grow and develop really quickly, and the requirements for some vitamins and minerals, like calcium and iron, is fairly high. The age at which your child will have a growth spurt will vary, but in girls the growth spurt normally peaks at 12.5 years of age, and in boys at age 14 years of age.

Many lifestyle changes take place during adolescence. When children start secondary school, they often have more independence and greater control over the choices they make. They can often make decisions about what and when they want to eat, and how they spend their free time. Media can often be a challenge promoting the "thin" body ideal, as well as challenging other aspects of your family values and beliefs. This may result in difficulty for them knowing what a healthy weight and lifestyle is, and this has the potential to lead to unhealthy eating habits and beliefs.

It is important to listen to what your young people are saying, and explore with them what their views and opinions are. Accepting and understanding your child's point of view, even if you don't agree, is an essential part of parenting adolescents to keep lines of communication open. If you build good routines around healthy eating and exercise, they will have an understanding that people come in all different shapes and sizes, and by eating a healthy, varied diet and taking part in regular physical activity, their weight should stay healthy.

(Adapted from https://families.barnardos.org.uk/13-19-years/healthy-lifestyles)

32. Which of the following statements is TRUE about the lifestyle changes that take place during adolescence?

A. Children have more control over their decisions and act more independently.

B. Children don't usually know how they should spend their free time and what to eat.

C. The "thin" body ideal from the media makes children stop eating.

D. Children learn about healthy weigh and lifestyle from social media.

33. What should parents NOT do to help their children keep a healthy lifestyle?

A. Listening and exploring their children's opinions.

B. Communicating frequently with their children.

C. Letting children planning their own routines.

D. Accepting even when parents don't agree with their children.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

At the World Cities Summit, Resilient Cities Network today released a white paper, titled "Urban Eats: How Cities Leverage Opportunities to Build Resilient Food Systems through Circular Pathways". The report argues that food waste presents an untapped business opportunity that can unlock multiple benefits, such as economic growth and green jobs, improved food security and a healthier planet. Globally, 150 million urban residents are food insecure, while cities generate over 2.8 billion tons of organic waste each year. Only 2% of this waste is captured and recycled to contribute to reduced emissions and increased employment, while also recapturing nutrients for growing food.

"Given that cities will consume 80% of the world's food in 2050 while food insecurity continues to rise, it is clear that action must begin there," said Lauren Sorkin, Executive Director of the Resilient Cities Network. "By advancing circular practices that both reduce waste and create value from waste, we can unlock multiple resilience benefits, such as reducing carbon footprint of food, improving food distribution, breaking the dependence on non-renewable inputs in food production, generating jobs and boosting food supply efficiency."

A circular food economy, which builds resilience, would help deliver an adequate food supply to meet global nutritional needs, and support regenerative practices based on reduced waste, recovering nutrients and addressing pollution in the food system.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

If you use instant messaging services, it's very likely that WhatsApp is one of them. But what do you know about it? Did you know that it was invented by Jan Koum, a Ukrainian-born entrepreneur? After he had bought his first iPhone, he got annoyed of missing calls when he went to the gym and WhatsApp grew out of the simple idea that it is good to let people know if you're available. He came up with the name WhatsApp because it sounded like 'What's up?'

There was nothing in Koum's upbringing to suggest that the young Ukrainian would one day change the world of social media. He was brought up in a small village near Kiev. When Koum was sixteen, he emigrated to California with his mother and grandmother, while his father stayed behind and never left Ukraine. It was a hard time for the family who lived in very run-down accommodation.

Koum studied Computer Science and Maths, but at school he came up against bullying from other boys and often got into trouble. In Ukraine, Koum had left behind his close friends and at that time, he looked down on the casual friendships that people had at highschool in America and he eventually dropped out of college.

Things changed when he got a job at Yahoo in the early 2000s. First he met Brian Acton, who would go on to co-found WhatsApp. When Koum and Acton left Yahoo in 2007, they applied for jobs at Facebook. Both were turned down.

Following rejection from Facebook, the two friends decided to go travelling in South America, and it was when they returned to the USA that they co-founded WhatsApp. The app didn't take off straight away, which was a real let down for Koum and Acton. However, in 2014 it had more than 400 million users globally. In the end, the huge success of WhatsApp came down to the excellent user experience. Facebook paid more than $19 billion to acquire WhatsApp, which more than made up for their earlier rejection, turning both Koum and Acton into billionaires.

COFFEE

We all know that a cup of coffee helps to wake you up in the morning, but several studies show that drinking coffee helps to prevent some illnesses like diabetes and Parkinson's disease. Experts say that you can safely drink three cups of espresso during the day, but if you drink too much coffee it can make you feel anxious or keep you awake at night

SUNLIGHT

Spending a long time in the sun is dangerous and can give you skin cancer. But on the other hand, not spending enough time in the sunlight is also bad for you, as it helps US to produce vitamin D. This vitamin is essential for strong bones and a healthy immune system, and it also makes people feel happier. Nowadays many people don't get enough sunlight because they wear sunscreen all the time, especially on their faces. However, don't spend too long in the Sun - 15 minutes a day without sunscreen is a healthy amount, and not at midday.

COMPUTER GAMES

You probably worry about how much time you or your children waste playing computer games. But in fact some studies show that these games can help US learn important skills. It seems that computer games stimulate the brain and that people who often play them are probably better at solving problems and making quick decisions. But don't spend too many hours in front of the computer - not more than about two hours a day.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

People in cities around the world walk 10% more quickly than they did twenty years ago. Singapore, a world business centre, is top of the list for fast walkers.

In the USA there is a book called One-Minute Bedtime Stories for children. These are shorter versions of traditional stories, especially written for busy parents who need to save time.

People aren't as patient as they were in the past. If the lift takes more than 15 seconds to arrive, people get very impatient because they think they're wasting time. It's exactly the same when an internet page does not open immediately.

Written communication on the internet is getting shorter and shorter and using more and more abbreviations, like BFN (bye for now) or NP (no problem). Twitter only allows you to use 140 characters, and now a new social networking site has a limit of just ten words.

Even in our free time we do things in a hurry. Twenty years ago when people went to art galleries they spent ten seconds looking at each picture. Today they spend much less time - just three seconds!

Our cars are faster, but the traffic is worse, so we drive more slowly. The average speed of cars in New York City is 15 km/h. We spend more time than ever sitting in our cars, feeling stressed because we aren't going to arrive on time.

(Adapted from English File, Oxford University Press)

31. What is the main idea of the reading passage?

A. How we walk now compared to the past
B. How technology has changed our lives for the better
C. How our current society differs from the past
D. How we used to lead better lives in past times

32. Which of the following is NOT mentioned in the text?
A. People in Singapore walk faster than in other cities.
B. The speed at which people view art in galleries has decreased.
C. The average speed of cars in New York City has increased.
D. Written communication on the internet has become more abbreviated.

33. Who is "One-Minute Bedtime Stories" written for?
A. the elderly B. teenagers
C. people who can't sleep D. busy parents

34. The word "they" in paragraph 3 refers to?
A. lift B. internet pages
C. seconds to arrive D. people

35. The word "abbreviations" in paragraph 3 is CLOSEST in meaning to _____.
A. shortened words B. informal words
C. technical words D. advanced words

36. Which of the following statements is TRUE according to the passage?
A. Our cars are faster, but our driving speed has decreased.
B. People like to take their time when they do things nowadays.
C. People had more patience in the past than they do now.
D. We become stressed when we worry about being on time.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

How much fruit do you eat every day? And how many vegetables? Food experts today think that we don't have enough of these foods in our diet and they say that we eat too much fat and sugar. This is why the World Health Organization has started a campaign to encourage US to eat more fruit and vegetables. The campaign in the UK is called Five a Day.

Why eat fruit and vegetables?

Fruit and vegetables are full of important vitamins and minerals which our bodies need to be healthy. Scientific studies have shown that eating a lot of them can prevent some illnesses like diabetes and obesity. Also, fruit and vegetables don't contain much fat and they don't have many calories, so they help to keep us slim.

What counts?

Nearly all fruit and vegetables count towards your five a day, except potatoes. The food can be fresh, frozen, or in a can, like peaches or peas. It can be raw, cooked, or even dried, like raisins or banana chips. A glass of 100% fruit juice with no added sugar also counts as one portion.

How much is a portion?

A portion of fresh fruit or vegetables depends on the size of the food. In the case of small-sized fruit like plums or mandarin oranges, one portion is two pieces of fruit. A piece of medium-sized fruit like an apple, an orange, or a pear also counts as one portion. With larger fruit like melon and pineapple, one portion is a 5 cm slice. We use the same method for calculating portions with vegetables. In the case of salad vegetables, a medium-sized tomato or a 5cm piece of cucumber count as one portion each. For smaller, cooked vegetables like beans and carrots, one portion is three large spoonfuls of vegetables.

Cruises are becoming more and more popular, with around 20 million passengers per year now enjoying holidays on luxury ships. Many people see a cruise as the perfect way to sit back, do nothing, and enjoy time off work. Everything you could possibly need is within easy reach. On board, there are shops, theatres, cinemas, swimming pools and leisure centres. There are more facilities, in fact, than most towns offer their residents. Therefore, it's easy to see why they are so popular. But what is the effect of this trend?

Cruise ships are often huge, with the biggest ones carrying up to 6,000 passengers. Moving such large vehicles requires enormous engines, which burn as much as 300,000 litres of fuel a day. One scientist has calculated that cruise ships create as much pollution as 5 million cars going over the same distance. Because they are out at sea, they also burn fuel that isn't allowed on land. Unfortunately, no government has control over the amount of air pollution out at sea. Cruises also produce huge amounts of rubbish, and cruise ships aren't usually good at recycling. Waste water from showers and toilets is usually poured directly into the sea - as much per day as from a small town. Waste food from restaurants isn't put into the sea, but still causes problems when they are brought back to land.

Cruise ships also cause difficulties in the cities where they stop. Popular destinations can get five or six ships per day, with thousands of tourists at a time. It appears to be a benefit for restaurants; however, restaurant owners complain that the visitors look around for a few hours and then return to their ship to eat. What's more, the crowds can put off other tourists, who complain that the streets are too busy. Some towns have banned cruise ships or put a limit on the number that can stop at the same time. People who care about the environment worry that as the cruise industry continues to grow, the issues for our planet will, too.

Phao Dat, clay firecracker hurling, is popular in northern Vietnam. It involves throwing clay firecrackers on the ground to create noise. A clay firecracker festival is held in many northern localities every year between the Lunar New Year and April when the locals are not busy with the farm work. The event in Hai Duong province is the most famous. It's hard to say when clay firecracker hurling first appeared in Vietnam, but legend has it that the game began during the construction of the Red River dikes.

The game invites good harvests and to ward off natural disasters. It is believed that the louder the noise of firecrackers is the more bountiful the crops will be in the coming year. Pham Van Phuc of Quyet Thang commune in Ninh Giang district said, "Every year, a clay firecracker festival is held between January and the end of March involving all communes and districts. "There is a competition almost every day. The competition brings us joy, happiness, good luck, and the hope of a new favorable crop," Thang added.

During the summer or when they had free time after school, rural children used to knead clay into firecrackers for playful fights. Before throwing the firecrackers, the children would sing a folk song that goes "The big bang of firecrackers stirs the entire village...". The children's folk game eventually became a game for adults and was popular at village festivals. According to people in Minh Due commune, clay firecrackers began in the time of the Trung sisters from 12 to 43 AD when female General Le Chan asked her soldiers to make clay firecrackers to create loud explosions to threaten foreign invaders. It became a game to play during festivals.

Every time you're online, you are bombarded by pictures, articles, links and videos trying to tell their story. Unfortunately, not all of these stories are true. Sometimes they want you to click on another story or advertisement at their own site, other times they want to upset people for political reasons. These days it's so easy to share information. These stories circulate quickly, and the result is ... fake news.

There is a range of fake news: from crazy stories which people easily recognise to more subtle types of misinformation. Experts in media studies and online psychology have been examining the fake news phenomenon. Read these tips, and don't get fooled!

1. Check the source

Look at the website where the story comes from. Does it look real? Is the text well written? Are there a variety of other stories or is it just one story? Fake news websites often use addresses that sound like real newspapers, but don't have many real stories about other topics. If you aren't sure, click on the 'About' page and look for a clear description of the organisation.

2. Watch out for fake photos

Many fake news stories use images that are Photoshopped or taken from an unrelated site. Sometimes, if you just look closely at an image, you can see if it has been changed. Or use a tool like Google Reverse Image search. It will show you if the same image has been used in other contexts.

3. Check the story is in other places

Look to see if the story you are reading is on other news sites that you know and trust. If you do find it on many other sites, then it probably isn't fake (although there are some exceptions), as many big news organisations try to check their sources before they publish a story.

4. Look for other signs

There are other techniques that fake news uses. These include using ALL CAPS and lots of ads that pop up when you click on a link. Also, think about how the story makes you feel. If the news story makes you angry, it's probably designed to make you angry.

If you know these things about online news, and can apply them in your everyday life, then you have the control over what to read, what to believe and most importantly what to share. If you find a news story that you know is fake, the most important advice is: don't share it!
