Plastic is so frequently used today that it's hard to imagine life without it. However, plastic has a serious impact on the environment. Unlike paper, fruit peel, or fabric, it can take more than 400 years for plastic to break down. Therefore, fish often mistake plastic debris for food and eat it, leading to deadly health problems. Animals and marine creatures can also become trapped in plastic objects which then make it hard for them to move, eat or even breathe. Moreover, plastic pollution can release toxic chemicals into the ecosystem, which can negatively impact both wildlife and human health. However, there are many simple things that we can all do to help put a stop to plastic pollution. First, reduce the amount of plastic that we consume. Avoid using straws or plastic takeaway cups, and say no to plastic bags at the store. Take along a fabric bag instead. Second, we need to reuse the plastic items that we already have. Wash plastic containers and refill them. Use a lunch box rather than wrapping meals in cling film. Lastly, recycle as much of your waste as possible.

Question 31. What is the best title for the passage?

E-commerce, or buying and selling things on the internet, is becoming more and more common. The majority of the stores that you can find in towns and cities throughout the country also have an internet outlet. However, some stores are only available online.

E-commerce provides a lot of benefits. The first advantage is convenience. Customers can shop at any time of the day from anywhere with an internet connection. They can look through different products and compare prices with a few clicks of the mouse or taps on their phone. Another advantage of e-commerce is the wide range of options available. In a traditional store, you are limited to the products that are available in that store. However, with e-commerce, you can buy products from all over the world.

However, e-commerce also has some disadvantages. Firstly, it can be unsafe. If customers enter personal information like credit card numbers on an unsafe website, hackers can steal it. Another disadvantage is that customers cannot touch or try out the product before buying it, so it may leave them feeling unsatisfied. The cost of shipping and delays in delivery may be another disadvantage for some shoppers.

Question 31. What is the passage mainly about?

- A. How online shopping becomes more common B. How to shop online safely
C. The good and bad things about online shopping D. The reasons why people shop online Question 32. What can customers do more easily with e-commerce?

- A. Try products before buying B. Compare prices from different stores
C. Meet store staff D. Make payments in cash

Question 33. What is one possible disadvantage of shopping online?

- A. You must have a credit card if you want to shop online.
B. Your product can be stolen while it is being shipped.
C. You may feel unsatisfied as you cannot see the product.
D. You cannot test the product before buying it.

Question 34. Which statement is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. Every store lets customers buy things online or in their shops.
B. When shopping online, people have access to as many options as they do when shopping at physical stores.
C. People may lose their personal information when shopping online.
D. E-commerce doesn't allow people to shop whenever they want.

Question 35. What is a common issue with shipping in e-commerce?

- A. It is always free B. There are no delays
C. Customers may experience delays in delivery D. Products arrive damaged

Living in a bustling city offers many advantages, but it also comes with its own set of challenges. One common issue is the presence of leftover waste on the streets, which can create an unsightly environment and attract pests. To combat this, city officials often implement strict waste management policies to encourage proper disposal of garbage. Another problem in cities is keeping clean in crowded areas. Because many people live close together, it's crucial for everyone to focus on hygiene to keep everything clean and avoid sickness spreading. Washing hands often and keeping homes tidy can help with this problem. Regular cleaning of public places, like parks and transportation, is also important. Additionally, city dwellers may experience discomfort such as itchy eyes and respiratory problems due to air pollution. Investing in air purifiers and wearing masks when going outdoors can provide some relief from these symptoms. Planting more trees and using public transportation instead of personal cars can also help reduce pollution.

Despite these challenges, many people are drawn to city life for its opportunities and excitement. However, it's essential for residents to be mindful of the drawbacks and take steps to mitigate them for a healthier and happier urban experience.

Question 31. What is one of the common issues faced by bustling cities?

In the good old days of school, life was simpler and filled with happiness. Can you imagine a time without smartphones or computers? Instead, we spent our days outside, playing games like hopscotch and tag with our friends. Our school was a small building with chalkboards and colourful posters. Our teachers were kind and patient, guiding us through the wonders of education using books and paper. During recess, we played fun games and the air was filled with laughter and joy. Our lunches were packed in lunch boxes with tasty sandwiches and fresh fruit. When the school bell rang, we eagerly ran outside to enjoy the fresh air. Homework was done with pencils and erasers, and we took our time to complete it. Our backpacks were filled with textbooks and notebooks, and we proudly carried them home every day. The best part of the week was receiving gold stars as a reward for good behaviour and hard work.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Water pollution can be caused by a variety of things. Firstly, sewage is dumped directly into the seas without being treated properly. This is a global problem, with equally significant challenges in high-, middle-, and low-income countries. Sewage pollution has reduced the water quality and posed several threats to human health. Secondly, cruise ships release a large amount of garbage into the ocean every year. 40 percent of cruise ships depend on 30-year-old waste treatment technology, leaving sewage with high levels of bacteria, heavy metals and other pollutants that are harmful to aquatic life and people. The third reason is oil spills. Oil spills happen in many different ways. Most of these spills are small and happen accidentally, for example oil spills while refueling a ship. But these spills can still cause damage, especially if they happen in sensitive environments. Large oil spills are disasters. These tend to happen when pipelines break, or big oil tankers sink. The negative effects of oil spills on the ecosystems and economies can be seen for decades following a large oil spill.

India is currently experiencing a heat wave, with temperatures in some parts of the country reaching as high as 46 degrees Celsius (114.8 degrees Fahrenheit). The heat wave is having a disastrous impact on people across India. Thousands of people have been hospitalized with heat-related illnesses, and at least 170 people have died. The boiling heat is especially hard on old adults and young children. Hospitals are complaining about overcrowding, exhausted medical staff, and frequent power cuts. The heat wave is also disrupting daily life, with schools and businesses being closed in some areas. Moreover, the heat causes stress for animals and has a negative impact on their health and milk production in cows. Climate experts expect the weather extremes to continue in India. The government of India is taking steps to minimize the impact of the heat wave. These measures include providing drinking water to people in affected areas and setting up cooling centers. People are advised to stay indoors in air-conditioned spaces, drink plenty of water, dress in loose-fitting and light-colored clothing, and avoid outdoor activities that require a lot of strength during the hottest part of the day. First, it is a relaxing channel where students comfortably tend to vent their negative thoughts on their school life via a status, share unforgettable memories, or watch multiple funny clips to relieve stress. Additionally, they can easily connect with those who have the same interests through various Facebook pages, where they can enjoy reading top comments or discussing hot topics with each other. Second, Facebook, regarded as the biggest knowledge platform, enables learners to get access to an array of free learning materials and even ask for specialised knowledge from other friendly users. Besides, it's very convenient for students to create a Facebook group chat on Facebook Messenger to upload and share lectures, prepare for class presentations as well as do assignments together. In short, Facebook can contribute to students' academic achievements if they take full advantage of it in an appropriate way.

I went on an exchange program to Australia for a semester and it was one of the best decisions I ever made. During my time in the exchange program, I had to face some challenges. At first, it was stressful to communicate with the locals as my English was not good enough. However, I tried to be positive and open-minded, and I gradually improved my English skills. The cultural differences were also a challenge, but I found it fascinating to learn new customs and traditions. I lived with a host family who treated me like one of their own and showed me around the city. I had the chance to travel around Sydney on the weekends and holidays. To my surprise, I didn't have to deal with homesickness. Some of my friends were scared of being away from their family for an extended period of time, so they felt lonely and left out throughout the program. I was able to keep in touch with my family and friends through social media, as well as making new friends from around the world. Overall, it was definitely challenging sometimes, but it was worth it in the end.

Something exciting has happened in teenager Annika's life. She has changed how she spends her free time, and her story contains an important lesson for many young people.

Before Annika made the change, when she wasn't doing schoolwork or chores around the home, she went on social media, but she started feeling unhappy when she was doing this. Although she was talking to people most of the time she was online, she started to feel alone. She decided she had to do something about it.

Annika didn't call the people she met online her friends, and she didn't have any friends in the real world either. She spoke to some of the girls at her school, but she wasn't interested in their free-time activities. She felt that this was part of the problem, so she looked around for a club she could join after school. Finally, she joined an art club with people in her local area and also got a weekend job at a place which looked after pets when their owners were on holiday. The art club helped to bring out her creative side. And she not only got paid for her job, but it also led to her making the first real friend of her life, Carmen, another girl who helped out at the weekends.

Annika still goes online sometimes to visit the same sites as before, but she is usually too busy in her free time preparing a painting for the next meeting of the art club or looking after the dogs and cats.

Dear student,

Local area studies

This term, you will do a project about a building in our local area. It can be somewhere famous, (19) a castle, or it can be a factory, a hotel, a shop or even a private house. You can choose anywhere, but it must be somewhere which has a long (20), not something which was built in the last 50 years. You must get photographs or drawings which show the building at different times in the past. You must make notes of the different ways in which the building was used. You should also take your (21) photographs of the building today.

You can work by yourself if you want to, but it is probably better if you work in a small group, (22) you often get better ideas if you talk to other people.

At the end of the project, you must (23) a poster, which your teacher will put up in your classroom. You will then talk about your building to the (24) of the students in the class for 20 minutes and be ready to answer any questions.

Inventing a Capital City

The capital of a country is where the government of that country is located. In most countries, the capital is the city with the biggest population. However, in 35 countries out of 195, this is not the case. In some cases, this is because another city is growing faster. But more often, it is because the capital was moved from the largest city to a smaller one due to a political decision.

For example, the largest city in Vietnam is Ho Chi Minh City, with one million more people than Hanoi, the capital. In 1976, Hanoi became the capital of the united North and South Vietnam.

The reason for moving has often been that there are just too many people in the capital. This was why the government of Brazil built a new capital, Brasilia, in the centre of the country, to replace Rio de Janeiro, which is on the coast, in 1960. It was also one of the reasons for moving the capital of Nigeria from Lagos to Abuja in 1991. However, in both cases, there were other reasons. The government of Brazil felt that moving the capital would encourage growth in areas away from the coast. In Nigeria, after a lot of problems between the three main ethnic groups, the government wanted the capital in an area not controlled by any one group.

Question 31. What is NOT true regarding Vietnam's capital?

- A. Ho Chi Minh City is larger than Hanoi.
- B. Hanoi became the capital in 1976.
- C. The capital was moved for economic reasons only.
- D. The population difference between the two cities is significant.

Question 32. Why was Brasilia built as Brazil's capital?

- A. To replace a capital that was too small.
- B. To move the capital away from the coast and encourage growth in the interior.
- C. Because it was the largest city in the country.
- D. To reduce the population of Rio de Janeiro.

Question 33. What was one reason for moving Nigeria's capital from Lagos to Abuja?

- A. To make it easier to access the coast.
- B. To ensure it was in an area not controlled by any ethnic group.
- C. To increase tourism in Lagos.
- D. To improve transportation links.

Question 34. The writer makes a link between Brazil and Nigeria because

- A. the capitals were moved for the same reasons B. the movement of capitals happened in the same year
C. both original capitals are on the coast D. there were too many people in both capitals

Question 35. What was one reason for moving Nigeria's capital from Lagos to Abuja?

- A. To make it easier to access the coast.
B. To ensure it was in an area not controlled by any ethnic group
C. To increase tourism in Lagos.
D. To improve transportation links.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to the following questions.

In 1907, a soldier in the British Army called Baden-Powell had the idea of teaching boys some of the skills of living outdoors. He took a group of boys to an island near the south coast of England and taught them how to follow wild animals quietly, camp in the woods, cook food on a campfire and even the amazing skill of making fire without matches. These skills were not necessary for the boys, but Baden-Powell saw the activities as a way to teach young people to work together. He put the boys in a uniform like a soldier.

A scout is someone who goes out and finds things for people, especially soldiers, like water, food and places to stay. After Baden-Powell wrote a book in 1908 called Scouting for Boys, small scout organisations began to appear around England. When Baden-Powell held a meeting for all these organisations in 1909, some girls came wearing uniforms like the boys and calling themselves 'girl scouts'. One year later, Baden-Powell started two national organisations, one for boys, which he called 'Scouts', and one for girls, which he called 'Guides'.

The number of groups for boys and girls grew very quickly in Britain and then, just as quickly, around the world. Nowadays, there are more than 30 million scouts and guides in over 150 countries. Scouts and guides still learn skills like camping and cooking, but their most important function now is helping communities. They do volunteer jobs like cleaning up parks, planting trees, helping at local events and visiting old people.

What Can I Say?

Imagine you are introduced to a stranger at a party. You know he is British, but that is all you know about him. You want to respect the customs and habits of his culture, so what is acceptable for you to talk about?

British people normally expect the conversation to start with a comment about the weather. If it has been wet, you could say, 'What terrible weather we're having!' to which he would probably reply, 'Awful! I wonder if it will ever stop raining.' If it has been hot, you might begin with, 'How long do you think this weather's going to last?' with a probable answer, 'It can't go on much longer, surely?'

So you have now dealt with the weather. What next? It is perfectly usual in British culture to ask about a person's job and give details of yours, and then the conversation should flow quite easily. However, people do not usually talk about salaries. Another possibility is a question about where the person lives.

People often used to ask other people about family life, but they are a bit more careful now in asking about relationships. If a British person asks you the question, you can reply, of course.

There is a general rule in British customs that you do not ask a stranger about politics or religion. Most people do not have any problems with differences in political or religious views. Friendship is quite possible between people with very different views, but with strangers, it is the custom not to raise the subject.

Question 31. This text is about

- A. possible topics of conversation with a stranger
- B. why some topics are not acceptable
- C. how to develop a conversation with a stranger
- D. the topics to avoid with a stranger

Question 32. What is a common way to start a conversation with a British person?

- A. Asking about their favorite food
- B. Commenting on the weather
- C. Discussing politics
- D. Talking about travel

Question 33. If the weather has been rainy, what might you say?

- A. "What a beautiful day!"
- B. "What terrible weather we're having!"
- C. "Isn't it too hot?"
- D. "Have you seen the news?"

Question 34. Which statement is NOT true according to the passage?

- A. The writer suggests that culture affects conversation topics with a stranger.

- B. It seems that weather is a common topic in Britain.
 C. From the information in the text, 'What do you do?' is an acceptable question to a stranger.
 D. You can ask if a British stranger is a Muslim, according to the writer.

Question 35. What do we learn about topics of conversation in Britain?

- A. People never talk about politics.
 B. People never talk about religion.
 C. Acceptable topics with strangers have changed.
 D. You can discuss anything connected with your job with a stranger.

It is often considered that the schoolyard is where bullies go to make other kids a miserable school life, but a new study suggests that classrooms are another popular place.

The study, presented recently at the American Public Health Association's yearly meeting in Philadelphia, is based on the results of the research from more than 10,000 middle school students who answered questions online.

Of those researched, 43% said they'd been physically bullied within the last month. A bit more than half said they had been laughed at in an unfriendly way, and half reported being called hurtful names. About one third said groups had excluded them to hurt their feelings. 28% said their belongings had been taken or broken; 21% said someone had threatened to hurt them. According to the results, two-thirds of the students said they had been bullied in more than one way over the previous month.

The study authors mentioned that 8% of the students who answered said they had missed school at least once during the school year because of fear of being bullied, 25% said they had taken other actions, such as missing recess, not going to the bathroom or lunch, missing classes, or staying away from some area of the school to escape from experiencing a bully. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the following questions from 31 to 36.

Fast fashion is inexpensive clothing which is produced rapidly in response to the latest trend. It is estimated that 100 billion items of clothing are made every year. This number is expected to grow by 60 percent by 2030. However, the downside of this fashion industry is its negative impact on the environment. First of all, the production of textiles requires a lot of water. For example, it takes about 2,000 gallons of water to produce one pair of jeans. This water is often polluted with poisonous chemicals which are used in the dyeing and finishing process. The manufacturing process also produces a lot of air pollution which is caused by the burning of fossil fuels to power factories and the release of chemicals into the air. Moreover, fast fashion creates a vast amount of waste. Many of the clothes that are produced are not worn very often, and are thrown away after a few wears. Clothing and textiles currently make up at least 7% of the total amount of waste in global landfill space. Only 15 percent of them are recycled or donated, 19 percent are burnt, and the rest ends up in landfills.

Question 31. In what way does the fashion industry cause water pollution?

- A. It pollutes the water with toxic dyes. B. It uses a lot of water to make clothing items.
C. It uses lots of fossil fuels. D. It creates waste in landfill space.

Question 32. What percentage of clothing is collected for reuse and recycling?

- A. 7 % B. 15 % C. 19 % D. 60 %

Question 33. What is the main idea of the passage?

- A. Fast fashion is a new trend in the fashion industry.
B. Fast fashion has a negative impact on the environment.
C. Fast fashion is expensive clothing.
D. Fast fashion helps save water.

Question 34. Which word in the passage is CLOSEST in meaning to "inexpensive"?

- A. exclusive B. expensive C. valuable D. affordable

Question 35. What is one of the negative impacts of fast fashion?

- A. Enhanced creativity B. Creation of a lot of waste
C. Reduced product prices D. Increased job opportunities

Question 36. Which word in the passage is OPPOSITE in meaning to "produce"?

- A. create B. destroy C. manufacture D. generate
