VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow

In today's fast-paced world, many individuals find themselves struggling to keep up with the demands of daily life. One common complaint is the constant battle against time. Despite their best efforts, they often feel like they're falling short when it comes to completing their tasks and responsibilities.

Time management experts have identified a crucial factor contributing to this struggle. They believe this happens because people don't prioritise their tasks well. They tend to focus on trivial, time-consuming things, leaving the important ones incomplete.

However, there is a simple yet powerful solution that is frequently used by those at the top: daily task lists. By organising tasks from the most essential to the least essential, individuals can effectively manage their time and maximise productivity. Regularly checking off completed tasks not only tracks progress but also provides individuals a great sense of achievement and fulfilment.

On the other hand, those who don't make lists often finish their day feeling unsure about what they have achieved. This uncertainty can cause serious problems for their mental and physical health over time.

Question 28. According to the passage, why do many people seem to struggle to accomplish things?

- A. They do not seek the advice of time management experts.
- B. They do not give priority to the tasks.
- C. They fail to deal with trivial matters.
- D. They focus too much on one difficult problem.

Question 29. According to the passage, what is the solution to time management problems?

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

In the past, children's eating habits were simpler and healthier compared to today. Children mostly ate homemade meals that were prepared by their families. These meals were simple and made from fresh ingredients that were often grown in the family's garden. For example, children would eat fruits, vegetables, grains, and homemade bread. Meat was not as commonly eaten as it is now because it was expensive, so it was considered a special treat. Additionally, eating together as a family was also common, and children would sit down with their parents and siblings to enjoy meals at the dining table.

However, in recent times, children's eating habits have changed significantly. Fast food chains like McDonald's and KFC have become popular, offering quick and convenient meals that are often high in unhealthy fats and sugars. Children are drawn to these foods due to their catchy advertising and toy giveaways. Additionally, processed snacks like chips, candies, and sugary drinks have become staples in many children's diets. Families are busy now, so they might not have time to cook at home. Instead, they might order food from a restaurant or buy ready-made meals from the store. This means children are eating more unhealthy foods than before.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

Being fluent in more than one language has numerous advantages that extend beyond communication. Multilingualism offers cognitive, social, and professional benefits, making it a valuable skill in today's interconnected world.

One of the cognitive benefits of multilingualism is improved memory and attention. Learning and switching between different languages exercises the brain, enhancing its ability to remember and process information. Multilingual individuals often display better problem-solving skills and increased mental flexibility. In terms of social benefits, being multilingual allows for better cross-cultural understanding and empathy. Language is closely tied to culture, and by speaking multiple languages, individuals gain insights into different cultural perspectives. This promotes tolerance, open-mindedness, and the ability to connect with people from diverse backgrounds. Professionally, being multilingual opens up a world of opportunities. In an increasingly globalized job market, employers value individuals who can communicate effectively with international partners and clients. Multilingual employees are often sought after in industries such as tourism, diplomacy, and international business. Moreover, learning multiple languages can boost academic performance. Research has shown that multilingual students tend to have better problem-solving skills, enhanced creativity, and improved overall academic achievement.

While learning multiple languages require dedication and effort, the benefits are well worth it. It not only broadens one's horizons but also contributes to personal growth and understanding of the world.

Read the following passage and mark letter A, B, C or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

From the 20th to the 21st century, there have been significant changes in the majority of countries around the world. Substantial differences are evident between the way we live today, and the way we lived a century ago. Viet Nam is no exception although there are some aspects of life in Viet Nam that are similar to the way of life of the twentieth century.

Living in Viet Nam today differs greatly from the lifestyle of 100 years ago. People in the past mainly worked in agriculture whereas today there are significantly fewer people working in this sector of the economy. These days, by comparison, people are more likely to be employed in manufacturing and tourism than in the rice fields. Moreover, Viet Nam, which was traditionally agricultural, is transforming into an entirely different country. While agriculture is still an important component of the Vietnamese economy, other enterprises are accounting for an increasing amount of economic activity.

However, along with the differences, similarities also exist. The Vietnamese have kept many of the characteristics of their forefathers. The Vietnamese people are as friendly today as they were in the past. This is best illustrated in the way they welcome foreigners. Moreover, the determination of the people of Viet Nam has not changed. The Vietnamese work collectively and happily towards the development of their country.

To conclude, while there are differences in past and present lifestyles, there are important similarities. Although Viet Nam has changed in many ways, there always have been, and always will be, the friendly welcoming smiles of the Vietnamese people.

Question 28. According to the passage, Viet Nam has had significant changes _____.

Read the following passage and mark letter A, B, C or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions.

From the 20th to the 21th century, there have been significant changes in the majority of countries around the world. Substantial differences are evident between the way we live today, and the way we lived a century ago. Viet Nam is no exception although there are some aspects of life in Viet Nam that are similar to the way of life of the twentieth century.

Living in Viet Nam today differs greatly from the lifestyle of 100 years ago. People in the past mainly worked in agriculture whereas today there are significantly fewer people working in this sector of the economy. These days, by comparison, people are more likely to be employed in manufacturing and tourism than in the rice fields. Moreover, Viet Nam, which was traditionally agricultural, is transforming into an entirely different country. While agriculture is still an important component of the Vietnamese economy, other enterprises are accounting for an increasing amount of economic activity.

However, along with the differences, similarities also exist. The Vietnamese have kept many of the characteristics of their forefathers. The Vietnamese people are as friendly today as they were in the past. This is best illustrated in the way they welcome foreigners. Moreover, the determination of the people of Viet Nam has not changed. The Vietnamese work collectively and happily towards the development of their country.

To conclude, while there are differences in past and present lifestyles, there are important similarities. Although Viet Nam has changed in many ways, there always have been, and always will be, the friendly welcoming smiles of the Vietnamese people.

Electronic devices are becoming increasingly popular in today's modern classrooms. Two significant devices are interactive whiteboards (IWBs) and tablets, which are making a great impact on teaching and learning.

An IWB is a large screen connected to a computer. The teacher and students use special pens or touch to control the board and write on it. They can also show videos and do interactive activities on the board. This helps capture students' attention and make the lesson more dynamic. Meanwhile, a tablet, such as an iPad or an Android device, is a handheld computer which students can use for various purposes. For example, they can access e-books, use educational apps, and collaborate with their classmates. School tablets are portable and provide access to a vast resource of educational contents. However, both IWBs and tablets have drawbacks. They are costly, so not all schools can afford them. Besides, there are potential technical issues, and much time and effort are needed to train teachers and students to use them effectively.

While challenges exist, these electronic devices help create a more interactive and engaging learning environment in today's classrooms. Therefore, schools should consider using them appropriately.

English is a (23) _____ language spoken by a lot of people around the world. However, when it comes to understanding the difference between American English (AE) and British English (BE), it is not uncommon to find even native-English speakers getting confused. One of the most evident differences between BE and AE is in terms of vocabulary. Another significant difference is the (24) _____ of certain words, such as color in AE instead of colour in BE. Verbs that are spelt with ize or ise in BE are always spelt as ize in AE. (25) _____ spelling and vocabulary, there are certain grammar differences between BE and AE. For instance, in AE, collective nouns are considered singular (e.g. The band is playing). In contrast, collective nouns can be (26) _____ singular or plural in BE, although the plural form is most often used (e.g. The band are playing). The British are also more likely to use formal speech, such as shall, whereas Americans (27) _____ the more informal will or should.

Electronic devices are becoming increasingly popular in today's modern classrooms. Two significant devices are interactive whiteboards (IWBs) and tablets, which are making a great impact on teaching and learning.

An IWB is a large screen connected to a computer. The teacher and students use special pens or touch to control the board and write on it. They can also show videos and do interactive activities on the board. This helps capture students' attention and make the lesson more dynamic. Meanwhile, a tablet, such as an iPad or an Android device, is a handheld computer which students can use for various purposes. For example, they can access e-books, use educational apps, and collaborate with their classmates. School tablets are portable and provide access to a vast resource of educational contents. However, both IWBs and tablets have drawbacks. They are costly, so not all schools can afford them. Besides, there are potential technical issues, and much time and effort are needed to train teachers and students to use them effectively.

While challenges exist, these electronic devices help create a more interactive and engaging learning environment in today's classrooms. Therefore, schools should consider using them appropriately.

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

Nowadays, teenagers have changed considerably in comparison to the teens in the past in how they spend their free time.

This is a "technology" generation. For teens in today's world, mobile phones, the Internet, and TV are essential parts of their everyday life. Most teenagers prefer watching TV and surfing the Internet to reading books. They don't like reading because watching TV is easier and they don't have to use their own imagination. Teenagers prefer to spend free time in front of a computer rather than to do physical activities such as playing football, riding bikes or going swimming. According to a recent study, teenagers growing up in the 1970s and 1980s enjoyed more than two hours of outside play each weekday, and a further nine hours at weekends, whatever the weather. However, today's teens play outside for just over an hour each weekday, and fewer than five hours on Saturdays and Sundays.

Teens now often communicate to their friends by instant messages instead of talking face-to-face. When they want to share their feelings or some private thoughts, they will post them on Facebook. This makes it easier to get comments or receive encouragement from friends. Keeping a diary is out of date now.

Teens now spend more time meeting friends in places like fast food restaurants or cafes. They like to eat fast food, greasy food and sugary drinks more than home-cooked meals. This leads to obesity.

In conclusion, the lifestyle of teenagers has changed a lot compared to the past. Parents should encourage their children to play outdoors more. This helps them not only stay active and healthy but also socialize with friends as well as create treasured childhood memories.

English is no longer just the language of England. Today, it's spoken and understood by billions of people around the world. This widespread use can be attributed to several historical and ongoing factors. The British Empire, which once spanned the globe, played a significant role in establishing English in many countries. English became the language of administration, trade, and education in these colonies. Even after gaining independence, many former colonies retained English as an official language or a language of business and education.

The rise of the United States as a global superpower further solidified English's dominance. American movies, music, and technology are popular worldwide, exposing people to the language and making it relevant for various purposes. Additionally, the growth of international business has made English the preferred language of communication for companies operating across borders.

Looking ahead, the internet and social media continue to fuel the spread of English. Online platforms connect people from different countries, and English often serves as the bridge language for communication. As technology continues to advance and the world becomes more interconnected, English is likely to maintain its position as a leading global language.

Cities are fascinating places filled with a unique energy. They are home to a diverse population, with people from all walks of life and countless cultures coming together. These concrete jungles, as they are sometimes called, are constantly evolving, with new buildings reaching for the sky and innovations changing the urban landscape.

One of the most striking features of a city is its towering skyscrapers. These steel and glass giants offer breathtaking views and house businesses, offices, and even residential apartments. Beneath these giants, a network of subways and buses weaves through the city, forming the lifeblood of its transportation system. Thousands of people rely on this network to get to work, school, and appointments, creating a constant flow of movement.

Cities are also cultural hubs, bursting with museums, art galleries, and theaters. These institutions offer opportunities to learn about history, appreciate art, and enjoy live performances. From traditional museums showcasing ancient artifacts to modern galleries featuring contemporary art, cities offer a diverse range of cultural experiences.

However, city life also presents challenges. Traffic congestion can be a major issue, causing delays and frustration for commuters. Additionally, the high cost of living in a city can be a burden for some residents. Nonetheless, the vibrant energy, diverse culture, and endless opportunities make cities a unique and captivating environment for many people.

Cities are fascinating places filled with a unique energy. They are home to a diverse population, with people from all walks of life and countless cultures coming together. These concrete jungles, as they are sometimes called, are constantly evolving, with new buildings reaching for the sky and innovations changing the urban landscape.

One of the most striking features of a city is its towering skyscrapers. These steel and glass giants offer breathtaking views and house businesses, offices, and even residential apartments. Beneath these giants, a network of subways and buses weaves through the city, forming the lifeblood of its transportation system. Thousands of people rely on this network to get to work, school, and appointments, creating a constant flow of movement.

Cities are also cultural hubs, bursting with museums, art galleries, and theaters. These institutions offer opportunities to learn about history, appreciate art, and enjoy live performances. From traditional museums showcasing ancient artifacts to modern galleries featuring contemporary art, cities offer a diverse range of cultural experiences.

However, city life also presents challenges. Traffic congestion can be a major issue, causing delays and frustration for commuters. Additionally, the high cost of living in a city can be a burden for some residents. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

1. Many young people think being a tour guide is a dream job, like a paid holiday without any costs. But in reality, it can be tiring and stressful. Tour guides have to solve problems and handle the constant requests of people who paid for the tour.

2. Nowadays, tourists are more demanding, partly because of the internet. They already know a lot of basic facts that tour guides usually share. What tourists want now is something unique and special. Just showing them famous buildings, monuments, or telling a few stories is no longer enough. Modern travellers prefer to experience the local culture and see how people really live in the places they visit.

3. This is why 'step-on guides' have become more popular. These guides live in the local area and have personal knowledge. They temporarily take over the tour to give more specific information that regular guides might not know. Moustafa, a step-on guide from Istanbul, Turkey, says 'it's a great way to meet people and introduce them to the city'.

4. To be a good step-on guide, you must understand what tourists want. Moustafa treats his guests more like students than tourists, encouraging them to engage with the places and people they visit.

Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

1. Many young people think being a tour guide is a dream job, like a paid holiday without any costs. But in reality, it can be tiring and stressful. Tour guides have to solve problems and handle the constant requests of people who paid for the tour.

2. Nowadays, tourists are more demanding, partly because of the internet. They already know a lot of basic facts that tour guides usually share. What tourists want now is something unique and special. Just showing them famous buildings, monuments, or telling a few stories is no longer enough. Modern travellers prefer to experience the local culture and see how people really live in the places they visit.

3. This is why 'step-on guides' have become more popular. These guides live in the local area and have personal knowledge. They temporarily take over the tour to give more specific information that regular guides might not know. Moustafa, a step-on guide from Istanbul, Turkey, says 'it's a great way to meet people and introduce them to the city'.

4. To be a good step-on guide, you must understand what tourists want. Moustafa treats his guests more like students than tourists, encouraging them to engage with the places and people they visit.

Question 28. What is the main idea of the passage?

Ever felt overwhelmed by commitments? As a student, Maya did. Between schoolwork, soccer practice, and volunteering at the animal shelter, her schedule was jam-packed. She loved all these activities, but lately, she felt constantly on the go.

One day, her friend invited her to a weekend camping trip. While the idea of spending time with friends in nature sounded amazing, Maya knew joining would push her over the edge. She worried about falling behind in school and neglecting her responsibilities at the shelter. Taking a deep breath, Maya politely declined the invitation. "Thanks so much for inviting me," she said, "but I'm swamped with school and volunteering right now. Maybe next time?"

Her friend, understanding and supportive, replied, "No worries at all! Your plate is full, I get it. Text me if you change your mind, though!" Saying no wasn't easy, but Maya felt a weight lift off her shoulders. She realized it was okay to prioritize her commitments and take time for herself. With a clearer head, Maya tackled her workload with renewed energy, knowing she wouldn't burn out.

The biggest difference between an eco-lodge and a green hotel is the setting in which you'll find them. Eco lodges tend to be more remote, located in relatively pristine natural environments such as beaches, jungles and mountains. Green hotels, on the other hand, are more often associated with cities and towns.

Eco lodges and green hotels both emphasize elements such as environmental responsibility and minimizing negative impact. The best ones offer renewable energy sources, recycling services, eco-friendly toiletries, energy efficient lighting, locally sourced food, organic linens and towels, non-toxic cleaning supplies, non-disposable dishes, water conservation methods and various other sustainability-focused initiatives.

But eco lodges tend to be more dependent on the natural environment than green hotels. They are also generally more active in nature and wildlife conservation, more focused on educating visitors about the flora and fauna of local ecosystems, and more deeply connected with the area's indigenous culture (whose influence is often incorporated into the lodge's decor and restaurant menu).

The best eco lodges also work to ensure positive relationships with the local people. They train and employ them at fair wages, take part in community development initiatives, offer activities that help visitors conserve and appreciate local customs, and contribute to the local economy.

The biggest difference between an eco-lodge and a green hotel is the setting in which you'll find them. Eco lodges tend to be more remote, located in relatively pristine natural environments such as beaches, jungles and mountains. Green hotels, on the other hand, are more often associated with cities and towns.

Eco lodges and green hotels both emphasize elements such as environmental responsibility and minimizing negative impact. The best ones offer renewable energy sources, recycling services, eco-friendly toiletries, energy efficient lighting, locally sourced food, organic linens and towels, non-toxic cleaning supplies, non-disposable dishes, water conservation methods and various other sustainability-focused initiatives.

But eco lodges tend to be more dependent on the natural environment than green hotels. They are also generally more active in nature and wildlife conservation, more focused on educating visitors about the flora and fauna of local ecosystems, and more deeply connected with the area's indigenous culture (whose influence is often incorporated into the lodge's decor and restaurant menu).

The best eco lodges also work to ensure positive relationships with the local people. They train and employ them at fair wages, take part in community development initiatives, offer activities that help visitors conserve and appreciate local customs, and contribute to the local economy.

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

Electronic devices are becoming increasingly popular in today's modern classrooms. Two significant devices are interactive whiteboards (IWBs) and tablets, which are making a great impact on teaching and learning.

An IWB is a large screen connected to a computer. The teacher and students use special pens or touch to control the board and write on it. They can also show videos and do interactive activities on the board. This helps capture students' attention and make the lesson more dynamic. Meanwhile, a tablet, such as an iPad or an Android device, is a handheld computer which students can use for various purposes. For example, they can access e-books, use educational apps, and collaborate with their classmates. School tablets are portable and provide access to a vast resource of educational contents. However, both IWBs and tablets have drawbacks. They are costly, so not all schools can afford them. Besides, there are potential technical issues, and much time and effort are needed to train teachers and students to use them effectively.

While challenges exist, these electronic devices help create a more interactive and engaging learning environment in today's classrooms. Therefore, schools should consider using them appropriately.

VIII. Read the following passage and mark the letter A, B, C, or D on your answer sheet to indicate the correct answer to each of the questions that follow.

How social media affect teens' mental health

In a recent study, more than one-third of teens say that they are using social media sites such as YouTube, TikTok, Instagram and Facebook. There are certain risks to teens' mental health when they overuse social media.

First, too much use of social media can occupy their time for other important activities. They may be reluctant to be in person with friends and family or not get enough sleep. If these problems continue in a long time, teens may suffer from stress and anxiety. Second, contents on social media may be violent, dangerous or inaccurate. Watching violent acts may give teens the sense that aggression is normal and acceptable. This may lead them to behave aggressively as what they see online. Social media can also present idealised images of people, which may result in increasing worries about body image in teens.

All in all, it is important that parents encourage healthy social media habits for their teens. They may do so by establishing family rules about social media use, being a role model of healthy internet use, and having ongoing conversations with teens about their activities on social networking sites. These should be done on a regular basis.

How social media affect teens' mental health

In a recent study, more than one-third of teens say that they are using social media sites such as YouTube, TikTok, Instagram and Facebook. There are certain risks to teens' mental health when they overuse social media.

First, too much use of social media can occupy their time for other important activities. They may be reluctant to be in person with friends and family or not get enough sleep. If these problems continue in a long time, teens may suffer from stress and anxiety. Second, contents on social media may be violent, dangerous or inaccurate. Watching violent acts may give teens the sense that aggression is normal and acceptable. This may lead them to behave aggressively as what they see online. Social media can also present idealised images of people, which may result in increasing worries about body image in teens.

All in all, it is important that parents encourage healthy social media habits for their teens. They may do so by establishing family rules about social media use, being a role model of healthy internet use, and having ongoing conversations with teens about their activities on social networking sites. These should be done on a regular basis.
